

National Level Exercise 2011

General Description

One of the main locations for the multi-state National Level Exercise 2011 will be Muscatatuck Urban Training Center in Butlerville, IN. The exercise will be an earthquake scenario; the first time a natural disaster has been used for a national exercise.

Exercise participants from Northern Indiana and other parts of the state will deploy to MUTC for full scale operations. The Southwest part of the state will participate and work their emergency response and recovery plans as the most severely affected by the earthquake.

The First Responders at MUTC will include international, federal, state, and local public safety professionals. Included in the operations will be search and rescue, fire suppression and medical surge.

The National Level Exercise 2011 will feature:

- Activities that are vital for local, state and national preparedness.
- More than 1,200 responders at MUTC during the week.
